

FAULKNER FARMS

Dear Texas Refinery Corp,

I just wanted to take the time to let you know why I feel compelled to write a testimonial regarding the quality of Paragon 3000 grease.

For starters, I'm a 67-year-old farmer who has farmed nearly all my life, doing things the way I was taught by my dad and his dad before him. Anyone that knows the mentality of a farmer knows that we can be headstrong and very set in our ways. I have always taken a great deal of pride in my operation, including the maintenance of my equipment.

Just recently I had the opportunity to finish up using a tube of grease I'd used for years. I ran out and put a tube of the new grease (Paragon 3000) into the grease gun. It was like night and day. The Paragon grease consistency was much greater than the previous grease. Almost to the point I actually thought for a moment my grease gun was on the blink! It soon dawned on me that the consistency was that much greater than the brand I had been using.

Typically, I would have used double the amount of grease if I had used the alternative brand. After using the hay equipment, disc, tractors, etc. that I greased with the Paragon 3000, I went back to re-grease and not one fitting would take more grease! The Paragon 3000 stayed put whereas the other grease would have been long gone.

I read the materials on the Paragon 3000 and watched the demonstration, and still was skeptical just because I'm not much on change. However, once I actually used the product, I completely understood the value it has to offer farmers. Even the smaller Kentucky farmer can't afford breakdowns, parts cost, or the downtime. Equipment maintenance is important to us all, regardless!

It takes a lot to impress me. Let's just say, I will be using Paragon 3000 from now on. Hands down - it's the best grease I have used in 50+ years of farming.

Thanks so much,

Sam J. Faulkner
